

Hey it's Randi here. Here is the outline of The Forgiveness Fire™ process. The process itself is easy when you have truly prepared your client for forgiveness. As you probably already realize, there is a piece missing. It is a skill set of confidence to implement and the ability to do the deeper work to prepare your clients for forgiveness. You need these skill sets as well as your own confidence to take action and use this powerful, life changing process.

As you also already know, the subconscious mind always needs a next step. If you love the process but notice you are hesitating to incorporate it in your practice, you might be in your own way and allowing a sabotaging part of you to control your successes. I know it can be scary the first time you add a process and do it with your clients. But if you already know you want more confidence to implement and more tools in your toolbox that get outstanding results, I encourage you to continue working with me

3. Induction and deepener (optional) depending on time constraints and client.
